

November 22, 2017

Dentons HPRP partner Hendra Ong was featured in an article 'A Meandering Path' discussing the energy sector in Indonesia, in Asian Legal Business (ALB) Thomson Reuters. The article was first published in the ALB November 2017 issue.

Understanding that Indonesia has ambitious targets to increase the utilization of renewable energy, the ALB editor explores the recent development in energy sector in Indonesia. While the government has passed various regulations on the energy sector, lawyers working in the sector see a great deal of client interest and much potential for the future.

In the article, Hendra's was quoted as saying, "Indonesia has great potential in terms of renewable energy resources, and this should attract more investors to get into this sector." However, he also shared his concern that the rapid changes in regulations reflects the instability of the regulatory framework causing uncertainty in the implementation of power projects using renewable energy.

In spite of this situation, the editor reported that law firms are today receiving many queries about how to invest in renewable energy in Indonesia, what the challenges are, and how to structure the business model, from both legal and tax perspectives.

Please click here to view the full article, as published in the ALB November 2017 issue.

With its extensive expertise in Energy and Mineral Resources, particularly in the electrical power sector, Dentons HPRP, an Indonesia law firm engaged in transnational transactions, has been successfully assisting corporations in the industry in a wide range of legal areas.

About Dentons

Dentons is the world's largest law firm, connecting talent to the world's challenges and opportunities in more than 75 countries. Dentons' legal and business solutions benefit from deep roots in our communities and award-winning advancements in client service, including Nextlaw, Dentons' innovation and strategic advisory services. Dentons' polycentric and purpose-driven approach, commitment to inclusion and diversity, and world-class talent challenge the status quo to advance client and community interests in the New Dynamic. www.dentons.com

Your Key Contacts

Hendra Ong
Partner, Jakarta
D +62 21 5701837
M +62 811 8400756

