However much the parties may try to minimize the possibility of disputes at the beginning of a business transaction, it is always possible that one will arise. If the dispute cannot be settled amicably, more formal procedures may be necessary. Recognized for its expertise in dispute resolution practices, Dentons HPRP was invited by PT Pertamina (Persero) to provide internal training for its employees. In the training program held in Patra Jasa Semarang (27/10), Dentons HPRP associate lawyers from the Litigation & Dispute Resolution practice team, Gading Sanyjaya and Egaputra shared their experience in handling dispute cases.

Gading and Egaputra spoke about procedures in dispute resolution, both by litigation and alternatives, specifically in land dispute cases. They shared not only the technical procedures but also samples of cases. The audience was also invited to join a discussion on how to negotiate with other parties.

Dentons HPRP's litigation practice was formed in response to increasing demand from our commercial clients for full legal services. It is one of Dentons HPRP's objectives for clients to avoid litigation, arbitration, or bankruptcy, but once it becomes inevitable, Dentons HPRP can assist and represent clients with all necessary legal support. In addition to provide legal assistance, Dentons HPRP's lawyers are ready and committed to sharing their expertise and legal knowledge with valuable clients. This commitment will hopefully strengthen our business relationships.
