

Overview

Banking and finance are at the centre of economic structure, providing instruments to help businesses expand and grow. Dentons HPRP banking and finance department represents companies and institutions from various industrial sectors. A dedicated team handling Banking and Finance practice is supported by qualified lawyers, Partners and Associate lawyers, with extensive experience in assisting important transactions in prominent companies, both domestic and multinational. As the team represents financial providers and clients, lenders and debtors, banks and non-bank financial institutions, you who need legal advices and services will benefit from counsel who understand the requirements and desires of each party in various types of financing, refinancing, trade financing, and syndication engagements.

In addition, our team is also involved in Islamic Finance practice. We understand that many Islamic institutions are keen on promoting an Islamic-based financial system and Indonesia has great potential in the world of Islamic finance.

Understanding recent developments in our country, the team has been strengthening its capability in the related practice and sectors, including the financing of infrastructure projects, and its working relations with banks and other financial institutions, in both conventional and sharia schemes, in order to provide exceptional legal assistance fit for clients' demands. Moreover, our experience with multinational clients in Indonesia will benefit those of you who wish to expand your business in Indonesia. To help meet your needs, we combine our presence in key financial centers and strong industry/sector knowledge with our established record of accomplishment in handling noteworthy transactions.
